

Willy Wonka's Chocolate Factory

Giving Back the Gobstopper

	SHOT	DIALOGUE
	1 Tracking Two-shot	Grandpa: Mr. Wonka? Wonka: I am extraordinarily busy, sir. Grandpa: I just wanted to ask about the chocolate... The lifetime supply of chocolate, for Charlie. When does he get it? Wonka: He doesn't. Grandpa: Why not? Wonka: Because he broke the rules. Grandpa: What rules? We didn't see any rules did we, Charlie? Wonka: Wrong sir, wrong! Under section 37b of a contract signed by him, it states quite clearly that all offers shall become null and void if (and you can read it for yourself in this photostatic copy) "I, the undersigned shall forfeit all rights, priviladges, and licences herein and herein contained, etc., etc.

	3 Mid-shot Over shoulder	Wonka: excendium gloria calpum, etc., etc. memo bis punitour delacatum!!
	4 Zoom to close-up	Wonka: It's all there, black and white, clear as crystal!!
	5 Close-up	Wonka: You stole Fizzy lifting drinks. You bumped into the ceiling that now has to be washed and sterilized so you get nothing!! YOU LOSE!! GOOD DAY, SIR!!
	6 Close-up	Grandpa: You're a crook. You're a cheat and a swindler. That's what you are. How could you do a thing like this? Build up a little boy's hopes and then smash all his dreams to pieces. You're an inhuman monster.

	7 Close-up	Wonka: I SAID, GOOD DAY, SIR!!!
	9 Tracking Two-shot	Grandpa: I'll get even with him if it's the last thing I ever do. Slugworth wants a gobstopper; he'll get one.
